

Italian Society of Periodontology

“HENRY M. GOLDMAN” PRIZE

The Italian Society of Periodontology would like to inform those wishing to submit one or more papers for the ‘H.M. Goldman’ prize to be awarded during the 17th National Congress (Bologna, March 15 to 17, 2012), that the material should be sent by February the 7th, 2012 for review and acceptance by the Scientific Committee.

Papers submitted may cover basic research, laboratory research or clinical research (clinical trials or innovative surgical techniques) provided they pertain to biology and clinical periodontology and implant therapy.

The paper should be sent in Italian language and should:

- be composed of a short abstract (max: 200 words) both in Italian and English and a text divided into Introduction, Material & Methods, Results, Conclusions and Bibliography;
- not be exceeding 3.500 words and be accompanied by no more than 7 figures and tables;
- be sent in electronic format by e-mail to: segreteria@sidp.it.

The submitted paper must be original and not previously published or presented in any other congresses.

Two of the presented works, one for basic/laboratory research and one in clinical research, will be awarded the “Henry M. Goldman” Prize and receive the sum of € 2.000. The Prize will be assigned by a Commission composed of an international panel of experts nominated by the Presidential Council.

If, based on its indisputable judgement, the Commission deems that none of the papers are worth of notice, no prize will be assigned.

The Commission reserves the right to award the available prizes to the two worth of notice papers even if they belong to the same category (clinical research and basic research).
